It was not until Saturday that Wall street took serious alarm at the condition of affairs in the Western railway world. The London market for American securities reflected the foreign estimate of terized the trading in railway securities, and there was foreign selling of the international stocks on the New York exchange. It has come to this, that the influence of the strike is now all-absorbing on the stock market; but immediate future of speculative values depends almost entirely on the course of the railroad workers, and it is hardening tendency by reason of the Money rates steady at 41/2 per cent. do not improve American securities will be returned by foreign holders in such command higher rates. The entire financial horizon is, therefore, clouded, and no week market than does last week The course of values Saturday for the reasons above indicated, and for these alone, was downward. Prices, with scarcely an exception, declined steadily from the opening to the close of business. The selling was largely of long stock, which the holders did not care to carry over Sunday. There were some sales for the short account, but in small amounts, the bears realizing that should there be a settlement of the labor difficulties the reassuring effect would result in a sharp advance in the market. Pullman was the heaviest sufferer of the entire list, declining 2 per cent. C., C., C. & St. Louis broke 314, but recovered 134, making a net loss of Lead preferred and Laclede Gas preferred each fell off 11/2; Burlington & Quincy and United States Cordage Peferred, 11/4; Northwest, Lake Erie & Western, Baltimore & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson and Sugar, each 1 per cent. The only stock which recorded an advance on the day's transactions was Wheeling & Lake Erle preferred, which is 1/8 above the closing price of Friday. The tone of speculation in the final trading was decidedly heavy, and the market closed with a downward tendency to prices. The railway and miscellaneous bond market was very dull and weak, in sympathy

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

S. Fours, reg..... 1133/

Henry Clews, of New York, says of the dealings in Wall street last week: 'From the intervention of the national boliday and other causes, the business of the past week has been of a ragged and unsatisfactory nature. The railroad strike has had much less effect than might have been expected from its extraordinary magnitude. At the opening of the week there was some selling from that cause, but it is a significant symptom that the bears, instead of making it an occasion for selling, became buyers to cover their shorts, and the fall in prices was consequently but 1/4/2 per cent, and of brief duration. The view very generally taken of the wild action of the strikers is that its own excesses must bring a speedy remedy. Wall street takes very little stock in the schemes of mere agitators; and in the blatant pretensions of Debs it sees a damaging blow to the demagogism that pervades a certain class of unions, though fortunately by no means all of them. The present strike, in spite of its magnitude and its display of threats and force, has brought out an assurance which not only goes far towards allaying the present trouble, but will also prove an invaluable protection against future disputes between the railroads and their employes. The government has reached the conclusion that it is legally concerned not only in preventing violent interferences with the transportation of the mails, but also with the interruption of the carriage of passengers and freight, as between State and State. This, upon full consideration by the highest legal authorities, the administration accepts as a true construction of the interstate-commerce laws; and the troops have accordingly been set in motion to quell the present disturbances in the West; which means that, if the strikers do not speedily return to their places, the roads will be enabled to fill their positions with new and nonunion hands. This action not only provides a short cut to the end of the present riotous proceedings, but it puts before railroad employes the certain prospect of their having to deal with the armed power of the United States in any future attempts to enforce their strikes by violence. This is not only of immense value to the railroads, as relieving them of a constant menace to their property and op-erations; it will be equally welcomed by the public at large, who have suffered great inconvenience and loss from these interruptions of travel and transportation.

Beyond this the action of the government carries a great moral assurance to the country at large. The lawless proceedings of labor organizations have so long been quietly tolerated as to produce a growing feeling of distrust as to the sufficiency and this spectacle of the impunity of violence of the laws for the preservation of order

ALARMED ON 'CHANGE | has been a direct encouragement to the dis-It is therefore a most refreshing assurance to see the highest authority of the Nation thus boldiy declare that the rights of property, and liberty for its unobstructed use, must and shall be respected. And yet this action, irrespective of the interstatecommerce laws, is nothing more than should be expected from the government. The railroads are the highways of the Nation, and if it is conceded to be necessary to keep them open for the carriage of the mails it must be allowed to be even still more necessary, in the interest of the people at large that they shall be kept unobstructed for the transportation of products and persons. It is a plain dictate of public policy that this important service should be performed by the national government; and it is simply marvelous that this duty should never have hitherto been openly recognized. "During the latter half of the week the market for securities showed the beneficial effects of these assurances. Even London responded by orders to buy. Indeed, the than it has been for many months past, if not since the passage of the Sherman silver act. This seems to be in a large measure due to the expectation that when the tariff till is out of the way there will be a revival of business in this country and a more settled condition of politics. And there are reasons for hoping that this ex-pectation may prove to be well founded. There is certainly an improved tone in most branches of trade. Buyers from the interior report a prospect for about an average fail trade; and, what is very important, they seem to agree that prices have touched bottom. It is true there is no very marked improvement in the amount of purchases; nor is it expected that the business of the second half of the year will show a really The banks now holds $72,134,725 in excess | brisk aspect; for buyers are likely to cling to the habit, acquired last year, of spreading their purchases over the season, instead Total sales of stocks amounted to only

This fact shows strikingly the difference between the banks and the treasury in their respective ability to control the movements of gold, and hence the unwisdom of making the government the chief custodian of the precious metals."

> LOCAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE. Trade Feels the Strike-Prices in Many Articles Tending Higher. The effects of the strike are becoming quite evident, not only cutting off receipts, but shipments as well. On Commission row and in the strictly produce markets the effects of the difficulty in moving freights is the most apparent. The strike was not felt here until after the fourth of July; on pravious days retail merchants had stocked up quite freely with vegetables and fruits, and they had some of the stock to hold over. Now that is gone they come on to the market and find they pay more for such articles. Wholesale dealers in groceries feel it, but dry-goods houses and millinery establishments expect dull times in July, and are getting their full measure of it. Provisions are firm and selling well for home consumption or any point where shipments can be made. Wool, hide and leather markets are dull. The local grain market is dull and uninteresting. Dealers and shippers are doing practically nothing, so light are receipts and so difficult is it to ship grain eastward after purchased. Track bids yesterday

Sheep in the Orchards.

Philadelphia Inquirer. Sheep in apple orchards are more helpful than swine, although the latter may be considered very good unless they show an inclination to root around the trunks and do damage to the bark. Occasionally flocks of swine show a decided propensity for gnawing at the bark and in digging at the roots of the fruit trees. Evidently this is caused by improper feeding, the animal craving for some element of food that is not supplied to him. Horses and cows will show the same insane desire to bite the trees or rails of the fence. Very often the lack of sufficient salt in their food will cause this unnatural craving. If the hogs are determined to gnaw the fruit trees or dig up the roots they must be banished from the orchard immediately. Sheep never injure apple trees in this way, and they can be turned into the orchard without fear of any damage. They should, however, be properly fed and not made to depend upon what they can pick up in the orchard. They will then keep down the weeds and grass and eat up the fallen apples, while at the same time greatly adding to the fertility of the soil. By letting the sheep cat up the fallen apples we destroy more worms, maggots and insects than could be counted. Every imperfect fruit contains a number of insects which generally leave the apple eventually and crawl into the ground or return to the tree. They breed in the ground or bark of the apple tree and produce another brood next year. In this way these pests increase their numbers rapidly from season to season so that with our spraying apparatus constantly at work we can hardly control them. But if the apples are eaten up by the sheep as fast as they fall the worms and maggots will be destroyed before they have a chance to bury themselves in the ground, In fact, a flock of sheep are better in an orchard than a ton of poison and several kinds of spraying machines.

GOOD TIME TO COVER

CHICAGO SPECULATORS CROWD UP THE PRICE ON CEREALS.

Very Little for Sale and a Slight Advance Scored-Provisions Holding Their Own.

CHICAGO, July 7.-Wheat operators were inclined to cover to-day, and finding little sale the market advanced. September closed 16c higher. September corn closed %c higher and provisions were practically | Eggs steady; fresh, 11c. unchanged. Wheat was dull but firmer. Evening trades were at 1/4@%c decline and rallied %@1c, became quiet and closed easy. The market acted as if operators had oversold and more inclined to cover and did not find a great deal for sale. Eastern markets were fairly steady and foreign advices did not respond to the drop here as much as expected, and added a little strength to the market. The Kansas State report confirmed all the bad statements in regard to the yield in that State, making the crop but 28,000,000 bush-
